

II: 'Medica'

7002

EC 1138

"Medica" as a mediaeval term included Medicine, Surgery (Chirurgica), Chemistry, Herbal Remedies and Alchemy. Many of the texts on alchemy came from the collection of Dr John Dee and the date on the whole from the 15th and 16th centuries; from the same period come a number of medical note books, the property of William Dun.

The pride of the collection however, lies in the earlier manuscripts, which frequently contain fine illustrations. James mentions a Chirurgica (Ms. 904) of the 12th century with fine "initials, and feathered ornament" from St. Augustine's Canterbury, and a Constantini Pantegni, again 12th century, from Bury St. Edmunds, which contains good initials. Outstanding is the collection of surgical treatises (Ms. 1044) of the 13th century, in which a large number of operations are illustrated by detailed line drawings of high quality.
