NOTE ON SOURCES

The documents in this collection are from the National Archives and Record Services, Washington, D.C., Record Group 165, Records of the War Department General and Special Staffs: Office of the Director of Intelligence G-2, 1906-1949.

These records are from Entry 79 "P" File: security-classified intelligence publications received from U.S. military attachés, military and civilian agencies of the United States, foreign governments, and other sources.

EDITOR'S NOTE

The Military Intelligence Division of the War Department wrote numerous reports on a wide range of topics relating to the military affairs, internal politics, and foreign policy of key nations of the world. The Bi-Weekly Intelligence Summaries produced by MID were meant for wide distribution within the War Department and other federal agencies. The purpose of these reports was to keep top officials of the national defense establishment abreast of major current events and trends worldwide that may have had an impact on U.S. national security.

These summaries have two sections. The first section contains short narrative articles on issues such as the army, navy, air force, defense organization, government, politics, economy, and social affairs of individual countries. An article will normally highlight a significant development in one area, such as the introduction of a new fighter aircraft in Germany. The Military Intelligence Division used both classified and unclassified sources of information in writing these articles. The second section of the summaries is an index of world events. In this section, MID gave a brief listing of events that had taken place over the last two weeks that it considered noteworthy for its users.

Each year of the Bi-Weekly Intelligence Summaries between 1928 and 1938 is preceded by a table of contents. These tables are actually annual indexes, arranged by regions of the world in chronological order. In addition, these indexes (tables of contents) have entries for maps and military supplements.

Main titles of articles can be found in the Reel Index portion of the printed guide. They are arranged by individual countries and contain additional sections as well, such as the Cartographic Index to World Events. Subtitles to articles may be found in the table of contents for each year. Subtitles give more specific descriptions of the articles listed in the Reel Index. By referring to these yearly indexes, the researcher can more easily locate particular articles of interest.
