SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

Introduction

On September 1, 1939, Germany invaded Poland, precipitating the Second World War. On the same day, General George C. Marshall was promoted to the U.S. Army chief of staff. By the war's end, General Marshall would become one of President Roosevelt's chief strategic advisers.

With the start of the war in Europe, General Marshall set about building up the U.S. Army and Air Corps in support of the "Arsenal of Democracy" concept of President Roosevelt. Under his command, the U.S. peacetime force of 200,000 men would expand to 8.5 million men and women by the war's end. General Marshall was able to tackle the mammoth command, organizational, and coordination problems with a supporting staff and field officer corps that included such military figures as Dwight D. Eisenhower, Douglas MacArthur, Joseph Stilwell, Omar N. Bradley, and Joseph McNarney. General Marshall coordinated and cooperated with the Allied Combined Chiefs of Staff to plan operations in all theaters, in particular Operation OVERLORD. He is credited with promoting and planning the invasion of Germany through France. General Marshall is acknowledged by many historians as being one of the main architects of Allied victory.

In November 1945, General Marshall left the position of army chief of staff to become President Truman's special representative to China. General Marshall's China Mission efforts to mediate the civil war between Nationalist and Communist forces was abandoned by December 1946. In his final report to the president, Marshall charged both reactionaries in the Kuomintang and hard-liners in the Communist camp with preventing a compromise. Upon his return to the United States, President Truman appointed Marshall to the position of secretary of state.

It was recognized by the United States that economic recovery and prosperity were necessary to the power balance in Europe. It was hoped that financial and economic assistance and support of Western Europe and Allied occupied areas would prevent a further extension of Soviet military and political power. On June 5, 1947, at Harvard University's commencement, then Secretary of State Marshall introduced a plan for the economic rehabilitation of Europe, which came to be known as the Marshall Plan. Within three years economic, financial, and trade gains in Europe were impressive.

Marshall left the State Department in 1949 after witnessing the economic miracles in Europe and other postwar areas. In 1950, President Truman recalled Marshall to serve as secretary of defense. His tenure included the recapture of South Korea and the U.S. invasion of North Korea, the "sacking" of General MacArthur as UN commander in chief, and the stalemate of the war. After September 1951, Marshall retired from public service.

Sir Winston Churchill paid this tribute to General Marshall:

In war he was as wise and understanding in counsel as he was resolute in action. In peace he was the architect who planned the restoration of our battered European economy and, at the same time, laboured tirelessly to establish a system of Western defence. He has always fought victoriously against defeatism, discouragement and disillusion. Succeeding generations must not be allowed to forget his achievements and his example.

Records Organization

The George C. Marshall papers are arranged into twelve groups. These groups span the period 1932–1960 and pertain to Marshall's rise through the military and his political and private life. The groupings are: Fort Benning, 1932; Fort Screven, 1932–1933; Fort Moultrie, 1933; Illinois National Guard, 1933–1936; Vancouver Barracks, 1936–1938; Pentagon Office, 1938–1951; China Mission, 1945–1947; Secretary of State, 1947–1949; ABMC, 1949–1950; American Red Cross, 1949–1950; Secretary of Defense, 1950–1952; and Retirement, 1951–1960. These groups are arranged chronologically, although some overlapping occurs. Each of the groups is divided into series and then subseries. In some instances an even more specific division has been made. This micropublication pertains only to one of these subdivisions in the Pentagon Office grouping.

The Pentagon Office grouping consists primarily of the personal papers of George Marshall as the army chief of staff. There are papers here from before and after the time that Marshall served in that position. The portion of the papers prior to his army chief of staff promotion reflect his activities as head of the War Plans Division. Those papers after his retirement as army chief of staff reflect his mission to China, and his time as secretary of state and later secretary of defense during the Korean War period. After General Marshall retired as army chief of staff, an office was retained in the Pentagon for his use. Consequently some correspondence received at General Marshall's other offices (in the State and Defense departments) was sent to his Pentagon office to be answered and interfiled with his earlier papers. The Pentagon Office grouping is further subdivided into eight subgroups. One of these subgroups is entitled Correspondence. This subgroup is further divided into three series: General, Selected, and Categorical. This micropublication pertains only to the Selected Correspondence of the Pentagon Office grouping.

Selected Correspondence Series

The Selected Correspondence series consists of forty boxes of material. This correspondence was selected from all of the incoming mail and all of the outgoing carbon copies and was filed in a lock-safe cabinet in the chief of staff's office. Much of the correspondence in the Selected Correspondence series was security classified at the time of its creation. General Marshall's correspondence with President Roosevelt dealt with his status as a primary adviser to the president on the preparation and conduct of the Second World War. In particular, Marshall reported to and/or received advice from the president on the general conduct and prosecution of the war; the rate of supply and production of war material; comments on U.S. military relations with Allies; aerial bombing issues and concerns; command structure organization and reorganization; airplane situation; ground and air operational planning and techniques; military and civilian food situation; shipping situation and effect on operational planning; and operational summaries and highlights, theater problems, concerns, and activities, especially in the CBI and Europe.

Marshall corresponded with a wide variety of military, political, and public figures. The military figures include U.S. generals Henry "Hap" Arnold, Charles H. Bonesteel, Omar N. Bradley, Dwight D. Eisenhower, Joseph Stilwell, Mark Clark, and Douglas MacArthur; Brazilian General P. A. de Goes Monteiro; and British General Claude Auchinleck, Field Marshall Sir Harold Alexander, Field Marshall John Dill, and Lord Louis Mountbatten.

General Marshall also corresponded with many of the leading foreign and domestic political figures of the World War II period. Foreign political correspondents include Winston Churchill, Charles de Gaulle, Chiang Kai-shek, T. V. Soong, and Clement Attlee. U.S. domestic political, government, and congressional figures include Harry L. Hopkins, Overta Culp Hobby, Henry Stimson, Cordell Hull, J. Buell Snyder, John W. McCormack, James F. Byrnes, Clarence Cannon, Albert Chandler, and other members of the executive and legislative branches. In addition, Marshall corresponded with many public and private individuals. These include Henry and Clare Booth Luce, Robert A. Lovett, and Joseph K. Carson.

In conclusion, the researcher will find that this collection is easily the richest of the Marshall Papers groupings.

EDITORIAL NOTE

UPA's The Papers of George C. Marshall: Selected World War II Correspondence has been microfilmed in its entirety, with the exception of exact duplicates. UPA has microfilmed all folders and documents as they are arranged at the Marshall Library. The folders are arranged in alphabetical order following the Cross Reference Sheets and Index Cards files. The documents within most folders are arranged in general chronological order. Material in folders titled "[letter of alphabet] Miscellaneous" (for example, "A" Miscellaneous) or with a range of letters of the alphabet are arranged by name/subject. The documents are then arranged in chronological order.

REEL INDEX

Entries in this index refer to specific file folders within The Papers of George C. Marshall: Selected World War II Correspondence. The documentation in this collection has been divided into three groups: Cross Reference Sheets and Note Cards, both highlighting various subjects and correspondents, and the Select Correspondence Files. Correspondents are arranged in alphabetical order. There are instances where a particular letter category (i.e. "A" Miscellaneous), subject (i.e. Directives), or in the case of the term "British" has been treated the same as correspondents, and has been placed in its correct place in the alphabetical order of the Select Correspondence Files. Documentation for a particular correspondent or subject may be further subdivided by date. These subfile folders are arranged in chronological order.

This index denotes significant events, issues, actions, organizations and individuals, and policies under the heading Major Topics. Individuals who sent or received significant correspondence are noted under the heading Principal Correspondents. Dates in parenthesis denote changes or specific time periods and have been added by the indexer to further identify the file folder and its contents.

The four-digit number on the left represents the frame number at which a file folder begins. The researcher is referred to page xiii for a list of the abbreviations and page xv for a list of the names, with their titles, used in this index.

SUBJECT INDEX

The following index is a guide to the major subjects of this collection. The first arabic number refers to the reel, and the arabic number after the colon refers to the frame number at which a particular file containing the subject begins. Therefore, 7: 0201 directs the researcher to the file that begins at Frame 0201 of Reel 7. By referring to the Reel Index located in the initial part of this guide, the researcher can find the main entry for the file folder in which the subject appears. George C. Marshall is referred to in this index as Marshall; Dwight D. Eisenhower as Eisenhower. Names of ships are entered under their given name (Missouri) rather than their designation (USS). Due to the large number of military units, individual subject entries have not been included for Division, Brigade, and Regimental units. These can be found together under the subject entry "Military units, U.S."
