INTRODUCTION

As East and West seized on their parts of Germany like cold war chess pieces, German national life revived along the tensest frontier of the emerging cold war. Each side encouraged those German political elements favorable to itself in its own area of control. The result was an accelerated drive toward separate and distorted statehood.

The postwar revival of German political life became a “tit-for-tat” game. The Western Allies set up a western German constitutional convention in September 1948 to promulgate a new German constitution, with a goal of ultimate reunification. The USSR refused to acknowledge this convention, and in May 1949, the Western Allies established the Federal Republic of Germany (FRG/West Germany). The USSR countered with the adoption by a People’s Congress in the East of the establishment of the German Democratic Republic (GDR/East Germany) in October 1949. This Communist republic’s goal was for reunification along “traditional” socialist lines, but it was in reality another Soviet vassal.

Two competing “Germanics” had come into existence. Inevitably, their internal politics were polarized by their cold war origins. The Soviet hand in the new GDR was blatant. Although the unified Social Democratic–Communist Party, the Socialist Unity Party (SED), did not have a majority in the one free election held, it had the lion’s share of places in the single-list elections in the GDR. The smaller Communist Party controlled the leadership positions and policy making in the SED, even though the Social Democrats were more numerous. The GDR was a one-party state whose authority rested on Soviet military presence and the Communist Party apparatus under party secretary Walter Ulbricht, who ruled from 1945 to 1969.

The FRG was governed by the popularly elected Christian Democratic Party under the leadership of Konrad Adenauer and his successors until 1969. The division of Germany did give the Christian Democrats an advantage—it prevented the Social Democrats, the largest prewar political party, from playing a major role. Outnumbered in Catholic West Germany, the Social Democrats were forced into the SED in East Germany and deprived of any national role, particularly in their old stronghold of Berlin.

The extraordinary prosperity of West Germany’s free-enterprise economy contributed to tensions between the Germanies. Easterners became immune to the propaganda and fled to the West to share in the prosperity and freedom.

Just as Germany remained divided, so did Berlin, which lay one hundred miles deep within the GDR, partitioned into a Western and a Soviet sector, the scene of continuing international friction. In 1961 the Soviet and East German authorities erected a physical wall to check the exodus of East Berliners, thousands of whom had already fled in pursuit of the more democratic atmosphere and material plenty of the West. At heart, liberals, democrats, and socialists in West Germany and in West Berlin, and Communists in East Germany, were at one in their determination someday to reunite their divided nation. The West Germans insisted that it be by free elections throughout German territory; the East Germans and their Soviet overseers insisted that it be by negotiations between the two governments. Although the two sides entered into consultations, reunification remained elusive; the issue was less in German hands than in the larger framework of postwar power rivalries.

The Western Alliance saw West Berlin as the key to maintaining West Germany within the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO). Soviet policy dictated the neutralization of NATO by neutralizing West Germany, supporting worldwide recognition of the GDR, and submerging both sectors of the traditional German capital within the confines of the East. The German people were deeply opposed to the last two tenets, for the reunification issue still had great popular appeal.

The documentation in this collection provides the researcher with a window into the myriad problems associated with a divided Germany. The documents cover the contrasting economic achievements of the western section and the failures of the east. The documentary collection provides commentary on the Berlin crisis and its effects on U.S.–West German relations, West Germany’s position in NATO, the importance of U.S.–German military strength, and the political vacillation in Western Europe. East German documentation consists of analysis, reports, intelligence sources, and correspondence with political figures. The documents relate the repressive nature of the East German government, activities of the SED, the search for diplomatic recognition abroad, and the importance of Soviet military and economic aid.
SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

Confidential U.S. State Department Central Files, 1960–January 1963

The U.S. State Department Central Files are the definitive source of American diplomatic reporting on political, military, social, and economic developments throughout the world in the twentieth century. Surpassing the scope of the State Department’s Foreign Relations of the United States (FRUS) series, the Central Files provide extensive coverage of all political, military, social, and economic matters relating to a particular country and/or world event.

The State Department Central Files for 1960–January 1963 cover a crucial period in U.S. and world history. Each part of the 1960–January 1963 series contains a wide range of primary materials: special reports and observations on political and military affairs; studies and statistics on socioeconomic matters; interviews and minutes of meetings with U.S. and foreign government officials and leaders; legal and claims documentation; full texts of important letters and cables sent and received by U.S. diplomats and embassy personnel; reports, news clippings, and translations from journals and newspapers; and countless high-level/head of state government documents, including speeches, memoranda, official reports, aide-mémoire, and transcripts of political meetings and assemblies.

In addition, these records offer new insights into the evolution of American foreign policy toward both allies and adversaries and into the shaping of the policies of these countries toward the United States. Of even greater importance for the study of individual countries is the comprehensive manner in which the Central Files illuminate the internal affairs of foreign countries. There are thousands of pages arranged topically and chronologically on crucial subjects: political parties, unrest and revolution, human rights, government administration, fiscal and monetary issues, labor, housing, police and crime, public health and works, national defense, military equipment and supplies, foreign policy making, wars and alliances, education, religion, culture, trade, industry, and natural resources. On these subjects and more, the Central Files offer authoritative, in-depth, and timely documentation and analysis.
SOURCE NOTE

Microfilmed from the holdings of the National Archives, College Park, MD, Record Group 59: Records of the Department of State, Central Decimal Files, decimal numbers 762, 862, and 962 (Germany internal affairs) and decimal numbers 662 and 611.62 (Germany foreign affairs) for the period 1960–January 1963. All available original documents have been microfilmed.
From 1910 to 1963 the Department of State used a decimal classification system to organize its Central Files. This system assembled and arranged individual documents according to their subject, with each subject having a specific decimal code. The decimal system from 1950 to January 1963 consists of ten primary classifications numbered 0 through 9, each covering a broad subject area.

CLASS 0: Miscellaneous.
CLASS 1: Administration of the United States Government.
CLASS 2: Protection of Interests (Persons and Property).
CLASS 3: International Conferences, Congresses, Meetings, and Organizations.
CLASS 4: International Trade and Commerce. Trade Relations. Customs Administration.
CLASS 7: Internal Political and National Defense Affairs.
CLASS 8: Internal Economic, Industrial, and Social Affairs.
Internal Affairs

For this section of the U.S. State Department Central Files, University Publications of America (UPA) has microfilmed the documents contained in Classes 7, 8, and 9. Within these classes each subject is defined by a decimal file number. The decimal file number is followed by a slant mark (/). The number after the slant mark (/) refers to the date on which the document was generated. Documents within each decimal file number are arranged in chronological order. The entire decimal file number is stamped on the right side of the first page of every document.

These classes are concerned almost exclusively with the internal matters of individual countries. The class number (7, 8, or 9) is followed by the country number. The number following the decimal point indicates subtopics within the major classifications. The date after the slant mark (/) identifies the individual document.

In a small number of instances, documents were assigned erroneous or incomplete decimal numbers. UPA has included, in brackets, corrected decimal entries. In addition, misfiled decimal number documents have also been included in brackets.

Note: Whenever the documents under a specific classification number total more than one hundred pages, the guide writer provides a breakdown of the material by month and year. When applicable, the guide writer lists, in brackets under the classification number, major subjects that are covered throughout all of the months. The guide writer may list additional major subjects but only under the particular month and year in which they appear.

Foreign Affairs

For this section of the U.S. State Department Central Files, UPA has microfilmed the documents contained in Class 6. Within this class, each subject is defined by a decimal file number. The decimal file number is followed by a slant mark (/). The number after the slant mark (/) refers to the date on which the document was generated. Documents within each decimal file number are arranged in chronological order. The entire decimal file number is stamped on the right side of the first page of every document.

In this publication, records classified 662 deal with the foreign policy of Germany and its political relations with other nations. Due to the State Department’s arrangement of these records, countries assigned numbers below 62 will not be found in this file. UPA, however, has included files dealing with the political relations between the United States (country number 11) and Germany in this publication. In order to find the political relations between Germany and countries other than the United States that have a number lower than 62, the researcher should check the Class 6 records for that country. These records can be found either at the National Archives, College Park, Maryland, or in microform publications that UPA has made available to libraries.

In a small number of instances, documents were assigned erroneous or incomplete decimal numbers. UPA has included, in brackets, corrected decimal entries. In addition, misfiled decimal number documents have also been included in brackets.
CLASS 6. Example, 662.84A/1-1262

662.84A/1-1262 indicates a document dated January 12, 1962, relating to the bilateral relations between Germany (62) and Israel (84A).

CLASS 6. Example, 611.62/2-2560

611.62/2-2560 indicates a document dated February 25, 1960, relating to the bilateral relations between the United States of America (11) and Germany (62).

Note: Whenever the documents under a specific classification number total more than one hundred pages, the guide writer provides a breakdown of the material by month and year. When applicable, the guide writer lists, in brackets under the classification number, major subjects that are covered throughout all of the months. The guide writer may list additional major subjects but only under the particular month and year in which they appear.

SUBJECT INDEX

The following index is a guide to the major topics in this microform publication. The first number after each entry refers to the reel, while the four-digit number following the colon refers to the frame number at which the subject begins. Hence 3: 0270 directs the researcher to Frame 0270 of Reel 3. By referring to the Reel Index, which constitutes the initial section of this guide, the researcher will find topics arranged in the order in which they appear on the film. This index uses the terminology and spellings used in the original documents. In order to avoid confusion, the term "Foreign relations" has been substituted for the State Department's term "Political relations."
