INTRODUCTION

The Ajuda Library was established after the Lisbon earthquake of 1755 near the royal palace of the same name to replace the court library which had been destroyed in the earthquake, and from its creation it incorporated many different collections, which were either acquired, donated or in certain cases confiscated, belonging to private owners, members of the royal family or religious institutions. Part of the library holdings followed the royal family to Brazil after 1807 and several of these remained there after the court returned to Portugal in 1822. The printed part of those holdings constituted the basis of the National Library of Rio de Janeiro. The building itself is now part of the palace built between 1802 and 1835 to replace the wooden palace erected after the earthquake.

Although this is not strictly a musical source, the library possesses a rare work which should be mentioned here: the Cancioneiro da Ajuda, a late thirteenth- or early fourteenth-century songbook which constitutes one of the oldest and most important sources of Portuguese-Galician secular troubadour repertory. Even though musical staves were added under the poetical texts, the music was never notated, but its rich illuminations depicting musical scenes are particularly noteworthy.

The music collection itself contains the scores belonging to the eighteenth-century court theatres, those belonging to the royal chapels of Ajuda and Bemposta, which were incorporated in 1840, the music collected by King Luís I (1838-89), who was an amateur cello player, and several hundred manuscripts of late nineteenth- and early twentieth-century music mainly by Portuguese composers, most of which belong to the collections of João Machado Gonçalves (1855-1935) and José Avelino da Gama Carvalho (1872-1941).

The most important part of the music collection is certainly constituted by the several hundred manuscript scores of eighteenth-century opera which were acquired for the royal theatres during the reigns of José I (1714-77) and his daughter Maria I (1734-1816). During a 40 year period, between 1752 and 1792, the Portuguese court maintained a permanent operatic establishment which included Italian singers, dancers, architects and set designers – including a member of the Bibiena family, Giovanni Carlo Sicini Bibiena – as well as a court orchestra. Beside the short-lived stately theatre known today as Ópera do Tejo (inaugurated on 31 March 1755 – with an extraordinary cast of singers which included the castrato Caffarelli and the tenor Anton Raaff – and destroyed in the earthquake of 1 November of that same year), there existed another opera house in the hunting palace of Salvaterra de Magos and a smaller one near the Ajuda palace, while several temporary theatres were also built during the period in the summer palace of Queluz, near Lisbon. All of these theatres were demolished in the nineteenth century.

Two of the Italian composers represented in the Ajuda collection had particular ties with the Lisbon court: David(e) Perez (1711-78) and Niccolò Jommelli (1714-74). The first was hired as musical director in 1752 and remained in Lisbon for the rest of his life, where he produced many of his earlier operas as well as several new works. After 1769 his activity centred mostly on sacred music, while the court began to favour the music of Jommelli, who, on retiring from Stuttgart to Naples, was hired to send to Lisbon two operas each year, one serious and the other comic, as well as sacred music for the royal chapel. The Director of the Royal Theatres, João António Pinto da Silva, attempted to collect his complete works both before and after the composer's death. In a letter of 7 April 1772 he listed 27 operas that already existed in Lisbon and asked the composer for copies of half a dozen more, which he could choose himself. In another letter of the same day he also asked the Portuguese consul in Genoa and general agent to the Portuguese crown, Niccolà Piaggio, to obtain copies of Jommelli's new operas for Naples and Rome without the composer's knowledge. After Jommelli's death his brother and sisters sent a list of all his remaining manuscripts, from which Pinto da Silva ordered those which did not yet exist in Lisbon.

Beside being charged with hiring singers, dancers and players, the Portuguese consuls in Genoa supplied the Lisbon court theatres with scores, librettos, argomenti for the balli, theatrical costumes and ornaments, instruments, strings and music paper, and even wick for the candles, but only less than a third of the opera, serenata and oratorio scores preserved in the Ajuda library was actually performed in Lisbon. It is obvious that the court was interested in acquiring as much as possible of the repertory being produced in Italy, from which it later chose the scores that would be performed. A source of information on the current Italian scene was also the books of theatrical news (such as Caccio's Indice de' spettacoli teatrali di tutto l'anno) which the Lisbon court received.

Later in the century Portuguese diplomats in Italy were also requested to look for and acquire new music for the court. In a letter to the ambassador in Rome, D. Diogo de Noronha, of 17 June 1782, Pinto da Silva refers to the sacred music which was sung by the priests of the Congregation [of the Oratory] and elsewhere, and asks him to send through Piaggio in Genoa those oratorios of which he had the best information, as they were in good need of them for Lent, and particularly for St Joseph's and St Benedict's day (19 and 21 March), and some good serenatas, which were in considerable demand in Lisbon. Replying on 18 July, D. Diogo de Noronha said that he needed the help of the retired Lisbon singers Battistini and Jozzi, who were not in Rome at the time, to choose the music. Most arias that he had ordered himself were all pretty well known, but in one of the Venice Conservatories or Asylums he had heard an oratorio by Anfossi which did not seem too bad. Elsewhere he says that the best composers there at the time were Sarti for the opera seria and Cimarosa for the opera buffa. On 8 August he sent a list of 19 oratorios, of which the following, marked with an asterisk in the original, were probably ordered:

Giuseppe riconosciuto	by Anfossi
Salomone Re d'Israel	by Casali
S. Elena al Calvario	by Anfossi

Pastorale a 4 voci	by Casali
L'Ester	by Sacchini
L'Abigaille	by Pigna
Il trionfo di Mardoccheo	by Borghi
Gianetta	by Pigna

Of these only S. Elena al Calvario and Il trionfo di Mardoccheo were finally sent, as the others had not seemed suitable to Battistini. As for serenatas (in fact three are operas) he sent the following that had been chosen:

L'isola disabitata	by Schuster
Alceste	by Gluck
Paride ed Elena	by Gluck
Matrimonio inaspettato	by Paisiello

Interestingly enough, Paride ed Elena had been originally dedicated by Gluck to his friend D. João de Bragança, an uncle to the Portuguese Queen, while he lived in exile in Vienna. It should be noted here, however, that practically all of the scores by foreign non-Italian composers preserved in the library, such as those by J.C. Bach, Gassmann, Gluck, Holzbauer, Mozart, Myslivecek, Naumann, Pleyel and Wagenseil, were never performed. With regard to the copies of the three Milan operas by Mozart, a letter of Leopold Mozart written from Venice on 1 March 1771 says that the Milan copyist was making five complete copies of Mitridate, one for the theatre management, two for Vienna, one for the duchess of Parma, and one for the Lisbon court.

In another letter of 19 May 1783 Pinto da Silva told the Portuguese ambassador that the music he had sent (meaning probably the oratorios) had been examined by their Royal Highnesses with their usual curiosity and that they agreed that at present in Italy good taste in composition was lost, and that there were no composers as good as those in Portugal (!). In 1784 D. Diogo de Noronha was again asked by the Queen's confessor, the archbishop of Thessalonica, to procure a few opere buffe for Lisbon. He wrote to Naples and Florence asking for librettos of operas performed there, because those that were being performed in Rome were very bad. He finally decided to send a burletta of the preceding year by Paisiello, which was one of the best that he had heard in Rome. Again in 1786 he sent a collection of librettos of burlette, one of them by Paisiello, and another with music by Fabrizi. He also sent the music of the burletta sung that year at the Capranica, the best there had been during the season, especially the quartet, which was greatly admired, being written by a young man who was at most 24 years old. All the operas in the other theatres were very inferior. In 1789 the ambassador in Turin, D. Rodrigo de Sá Coutinho, also sent several librettos and additionally scores of burlette and opere serie, including the one which had been performed at the wedding of the Duke of Aosta.

Occasionally the Queen also sent operas and serenatas as gifts to foreign courts. The serenatas Seleuco, Everardo II, re di Lituania, Penelope and Adrasto (two copies), by the Portuguese composer João de Sousa Carvalho, were copied between 1781 and 1784 to be sent to the Madrid court. In 1784 and 1786 the operas Solimano (by Perez?), Li fratelli Pappamosca by Guglielmi and La finta giardinera by Anfossi were copied to be sent to the court of Russia.

The great majority of the scores of the operas and serenatas which were performed at court are copies made in Lisbon. These are all carefully written copies in the same style of hand throughout, which contrast sharply with the hasty and disorderly appearance of the scores of Italian origin. A typical complaint concerning Italian copyists is in fact voiced by the Director of the Royal Theatres in the above quoted letter to Piaggio. There he insisted that the copies of Jommelli's operas should be made by the best hand available, as the scores which came from Italy were usually badly and hastily written. Some copyists frequently left out the second violin, or the oboes, or the flutes, while others, to increase the number of pages, wrote only two or three bars on each page, which besides being dishonest forced the performers to keep turning the pages.

In certain cases complete sets of parts exist, along with separate arias from the operas, occasionally with the names of the players and the singers who used them. Several scores, by way of contrast, are richly bound in red leather with gold decorations, and they do not seem to have been used in performance. This is the case with the Lisbon copies of Perez's operas, in contrast with the original (possibly autograph) scores, which show signs of great use. Several of them bear the name of Olimpia Perez, the sister of the composer, from whom they were probably acquired. Certain scores bear evidence for the elimination of arias and whole scenes. This is the case in Piccinni's L'incognita perseguitata, performed at the Ajuda Theatre in 1766 (46-I-13/15), where 24 pages corresponding to the first three scenes of Act III were sewn together.

Beside the large number of works by Italian and other foreign composers, the Ajuda collection also includes a considerable number of works by all the main Portuguese court composers of the mid- and late eighteenth century, such as Pedro António Avondano (1714-82), Luciano Xavier dos Santos (1734-1808), the already mentioned João Cordeiro da Silva and João de Sousa Carvalho (1745-c.1799/1800), Jerónimo Francisco de Lima (1741-1822), José Joaquim dos Santos (c.1747-1801) and António Leal Moreira (1758-1819), as well as by Marcos Portugal (1762-1830). A number of rare scores from the first half of the eighteenth century have also survived the earthquake of 1755. These include two of the first operas by a Portuguese composer: the third act of La pazienza di Socrate of 1733 (47-II-14) and La Spinalba of 1739 (48-II-42) by Francisco António de Almeida. The music library of the Paço Ducal at Vila Viçosa, another of the royal residences, also preserves several eighteenth-century opera scores belonging to the court theatres' collection. In fact, in certain cases different acts of the same opera have been split between the two libraries.

PUBLISHER'S NOTE

The Biblioteca da Ajuda was founded in 1756, and houses the erstwhile private library of the Portuguese royal family. This immensely rich collection of music is presented on microfilm, with electronic indexing, in three chronological sections: music before 1740, 1740-70 and 1770-1820.

The end of the eighteenth century saw Portuguese music still in predominantly Italian style - this section includes many major Italian composers and works in Italian, among them five Mozart manuscripts at cat. 1678-1682, a large collection of Paisiello opera manuscripts at cat. 1785-1831, and 18 operas by Cimarosa at cat. 540-559. In Lisbon Carvalho's two pupils, Marcos Antônio da Fonseca Portugal and Antônio Leal Moreira and the mestre de capela of Bemposta royal chapel Luciano Xavier dos Santos dominated musical life, and became significant European musical voices.

Luciano Xavier dos Santos (1734-1808 - see also Section A): ranks as an opera composer with Carvalho and Moreira, and set many Metastasio and other texts as operas and stage works for royal family events, many performed at the palace theatres of Ajuda and Queluz. The Biblioteca da Ajuda is the main source for his manuscripts, and includes among many others the following Metastasio operas: Le grazie vendicate, 1762 : Gli orti esperide, 1764 : the cantata La danza, 1766 : Il Palladio conservato 1771 : Il re pastore, 1797 : Clemenza di Tito.

António Leal Moreira (1758-1819) became mestre de capela of the royal chapel in 1787 and composed many sacred works presented in Section A (cat. 1621-1669). He was also a stage composer ranking alongside his brother-in-law Marcos Portugal. As well as setting Italian texts (he set the same Parini text for Ascania in Alba as Mozart - a manuscript of which is at cat. 1678), he was among the first composers to set Portuguese texts. Of his secular works, the Biblioteca da Ajuda holds the opera seria Siface e Sofonisba of 1783 at cat. 1661, performed at Queluz palace, L'Imenei di Delfo at cat. 1643, staged for a double royal wedding at the Pacacio da Ajuda in 1785 and the staged oratorio Ester of 1786 at cat.1633.

Marcos Anónio da Fonseca Portugal (1762-1830) was a singer, organist, composer and in 1785 was appointed conductor of the Teatro do Salitre, where he produced in July 1787 a Licença pastoril (cat. 2537) in honour of the birthday of Princess Maria Benedicta. Already famous in Portugal, he was sent in 1792 to Italy, where he embarked on a series of 21 operas produced across Italy. On his return to Lisbon in 1800 he was appointed mestre de capela of the royal chapel and director of the Opera at S Carlos. Of the 83 Portugal mss here, Section C presents his secular works including the operas Fernando nel Messico, Merope, La morte de Mitridate, La Morte de Semiramide and Zaira while in Section A we find Confitebors, Credos, Dignre Domine, Dixit Dominus, Masses and Misereres, Laudates and Te Deums, while one of the most interesting items comes from his later years. In 1807 the French invasion of Portugal forced the royal family into exile in Rio de Janeiro, whence Marcos Portugal followed them in 1808 and 3 centuries of court musical life ended. Portugal continued to produce and compose opera in Brazil, where he also became mestre of the royal chapel to the future John VI. At cat. 2584 we present the autograph manuscript of Portugal's "Veni Sancte Spiritus", dated Rio de Janeiro, 1812.

Brazil of course was, until its independence in 1822, Portugal's largest and wealthiest colony, and there is ample evidence in this collection of music from, music for and music influenced by Brazil. Until the influx of western composers following the court in exile, most art music in Brazil was church music, but Italian and Italianate opera was performed there during the colonial period, and the archetypal popular song-form the Modinha - most often for two sopranos and guitar or harpsichord - is found throughout the collection. The best collections are the 30 eighteenth-century Modinhas do Brasil at cat. 1596, and the 12 Portuguese examples at cat. 1595.
